When we are one mile from our anchoring position, we stop engine. When we get to our first anchor position (the position to drop port anchor), we drop port anchor 5 shackles in the water and turn to starboard. When we are at our second anchor position (the position to drop starboard anchor), we let go starboard anchor 3 shackles in the water. The current drifts us astern. Once at our final position (anchoring position), we heave up one shackle from the port cable and veer out one shackle from the starboard cable to have both anchors even.
